1	A man had two sons.
	The younger son set off into another country, but wasted his money on reckless living.
	The father divided his property between his two sons.
	The younger son asked his father for his share of the estate, so that he could live his own life away from home.
5	He was soon desperate for more money to buy food to eat and some place to live.
	He felt so desperate that he decided to go back home to his father, confess what he had done and ask for a proper job as a servant of his father.
	So he took a job looking after some pigs and was so hungry he felt like eating the pigs' food.
	Instead of being angry, his father was overjoyed to see him and prepared a welcome home feast.
9	However, his older brother was angry because he did not think it was fair.
	He felt that his brother was being rewarded for being wasteful, while he gained no reward for being a faithful and obedient son.
